

MORTGAGE PROCESS GUIDE

• Here to help you home.

Purchasing a home, whether it's your first, fifth, or fifteenth property, is a complicated process. Navigating through required documents, understanding industry jargon, and remembering the names and roles of the professionals you'll meet along the way are just some of the tasks included in your mortgage journey.

At Penrith, we value educating buyers on what to expect before entering into the home financing process, ensuring that you're comfortable and confident in each decision that you make.

We understand the importance of home and we're honored to assist you.

GETTING BUYER READY

Even before you fill out a mortgage application, you'll want to get buyer ready. This means beefing up your credit score, paying down debt, saving up for a down payment, and getting documents ready for you to be pre-approved. Tackling all four tasks at one time can seem daunting until you break it all down.

You will need more than a good credit score and a large down payment to purchase a home. Home sellers will not take your offer or even your request to view the home seriously unless you have the backing of a lending institution. In order to be qualified for a mortgage, you will need proof of income, proof of the funds to be used for the down payment and a solid credit score.

BREAKING DOWN CREDIT SCORES

Your credit score is an indication of your repayment likelihood on a scale of 300 to 850. For lenders, a higher credit score means you're more likely to repay a loan, putting the lender in a less risky situation; the inverse is true for lower credit scores.

Breaking down a credit score can seem complicated at first, but it's important to remember that each score is made of five key features:

1. Payment history
(frequency of on-time payments)
2. Amount owed
(the amount of credit used)
3. Length of history
(how long you've had credit)
4. New credit
(new lines of credit opened)
5. Types of credit
(differing credit lines)

Credit scores directly impact your loan's interest rate, and how much you'll end up paying by the end of the loan. Higher scores attract lower interest rates, and vice versa. If your credit score is in the "poor" to "fair" range, consider paying down some debt, and increasing your on-time payment frequency to help improve it.

THE LOW DOWN ON DOWN PAYMENTS

A common misconception with home financing is that buyers are required to come with a 20% down payment requirement; this means as a borrower, you'd pay 20% of the purchase price now, and take out a mortgage on the rest of the home's cost. However, a 20% down payment is not your only avenue to homeownership. There are many mortgage programs that require less of a down payment, from 15% to 3.5%. Some loan programs even have no down payment at all.

Larger down payments allow you to have a smaller monthly mortgage payment, as you are borrowing less. Additionally, you can avoid an additional mortgage insurance payment. On the other hand, smaller down payments come with benefits as well, the overall being your ability to enter into homeownership sooner. While a lower down payment may cost more in terms of your monthly mortgage*, it's important to keep in mind the equity that you'll be building at the same time. Some prospective buyers may consider renting while saving up for a down payment; however, consider the equity you could build by putting that money towards your mortgage instead.

In addition to your mortgage payment, many programs will require you to purchase mortgage insurance when putting down less than 20%.*

Understanding “PITI”

Aside from your down payment on a home, which is a one-time payment at closing, the next financial obligation to keep in mind is your PITI. PITI, an acronym for “principal, interest, taxes, and insurance”, essentially represents the factors that determine the cost of your monthly mortgage.

Don't forget costs like taxes and insurance when considering a monthly payment that you're comfortable with. The best way to get a concrete idea of how much interest, taxes and insurance could cost you is to work with your local Mortgage Consultant.

MORTGAGE MAKE-UP

Mortgage Insurance

If you're entering into homeownership without a 20% down payment, be sure to factor in mortgage insurance.

Depending on the financing program, you may be required to purchase an additional form of insurance called “mortgage insurance.” Typically, this will be paid alongside your mortgage.

It's good to keep in mind that this insurance is not permanent--once you've reached 20% equity in your home, you can work with your mortgage consultant to remove these additional payments.

Having a 20% down payment is traditionally a huge obstacle to overcome in the journey to homeownership. However, it shouldn't stop you!

GETTING PRE- APPROVED

Once you're ready to officially enter into the home financing process, you'll want to get pre-approved. This is where you provide your proof of income, access to your credit report and proof of your down payment for a preliminary evaluation. As a result, you'll receive a pre-approval letter from your lender stating how much they're willing to offer in terms of financing, presentable to sellers when making an offer. Many real estate agents do not want to show a home unless the interested buyer has obtained a pre-approval. Being pre-approved communicates your seriousness to home sellers, reassuring them that you are able to close on the property and complete the transaction.

Paying down debt can help increase your credit score. Additionally, the less debt you have to pay down, the more you can put towards saving for your down payment. Once you feel comfortable in your financial standing, it's time to get pre-approved.

FINANCING OPTIONS

Like most Americans, you may not have the funds to put in an all-cash offer on a home. Making up the difference between the down payment you have available and the rest of the home's property price is where we jump in to help.

Home financing is not one-size-fits-all. In fact, there are a variety of loan programs available to fit the needs of an individual borrower, making homeownership possible. Depending on your goals, location, and/or financial status, there is a home loan program that works for you.

CONVENTIONAL LOANS

Conventional loans are popular for borrowers with strong credit scores and a solid down payment of 3% to 20% of the property's purchase price. While a typical loan term is 30 years, your fixed rate or adjustable rate loan can be financed for as short as 10 years. Longer loan terms come with lower monthly payments, while the benefits of shorter terms being that you build equity faster and pay off the loan sooner.

If you're looking to finance a property that may be restricted when utilizing government loans, a conventional mortgage could be the right option. Refinancing into a conventional loan is also a good solution for borrowers who would like to remove their current mortgage insurance and lower their monthly payments.

GOVERNMENT- BACKED LOAN OPTIONS

A government-backed mortgage is insured by an agency of the federal government, making it easier for more people to qualify for a mortgage who normally might not. By assuming some of the risks of lending, these federal agencies open the doors for low- to moderate-income borrowers, those living in rural areas, and even service members and their families.

FHA LOANS

Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loans offer flexible underwriting guidelines, helping you qualify. FHA loans are one type of government loan intended to assist more homebuyers in qualifying for a mortgage.

While secured by the Federal Housing Administration, FHA loans require monthly mortgage insurance premiums paid by the borrower that protect the lender in the case of default. FHA loans provide more flexible qualifying criteria, such as credit and income requirements, than other loan programs. Additionally, this loan type permits small down payments (as little as 3.5%), making it an appealing option for many homebuyers.

USDA LOANS

USDA loans offer an affordable financing option for eligible rural properties. Backed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, this loan type provides favorable home financing opportunities for eligible borrowers in rural areas who meet certain income requirements. USDA loans offer flexible qualifying criteria and options for covering down payment and closing costs.

Homes eligible for USDA financing are typically found in rural areas, but you may be surprised to learn these designated areas are extensive. Visit the USDA Property and Eligibility site to learn more about eligible areas and income restrictions.

VETERANS (VA) LOANS

Veterans Administration (VA) loans are available only to veterans or active-duty members of the U.S. Armed Forces, providing significant buying power for service members.

VA loans offer flexible terms and underwriting standards, allowing you to take advantage of your earned benefits. These loans are a good option for past and current military personnel as they offer lower rates than other loan programs and a 0% down payment on standard loans. With no down payment or mortgage insurance requirements on standard loans, VA loans offer affordable financing options to veterans, active duty military, reservists, National Guard and surviving military spouses.

JUMBO LOANS

Jumbo loans provide financing solutions for luxury properties and high-cost areas. Jumbo loans permit homebuyers to borrow more than conforming and government loans allow. This gives well-qualified borrowers greater buying power in high-cost areas. If you're looking to finance a property that may exceed your county's loan limits, a Jumbo loan is a promising option. Jumbo programs may also benefit borrowers with nontraditional employment statuses or sources of income, or those with complex financing scenarios.

EVEN MORE FINANCING OPTIONS

Non-QM Loans

Non-qualified mortgages (Non-QM) empower borrowers to qualify for a loan based on alternative methods outside of the conventional documentation requirements for income verification. This is an ideal option for entrepreneurs, self-employed borrowers, and those thriving in gig economies who may not have pay stubs to submit, but can still prove to have a reliable income.

Refinancing Loans

Refinancing can improve your loan terms, helping you reach your goals. A traditional refinance on your current mortgage may improve your loan terms and lower your monthly payment, saving you money and assisting you in paying your mortgage off sooner if you choose to do so. Additionally, a cash-out refinance allows you to tap into your home's equity, which may be a productive option for consolidating debt or funding a home improvement project.

THE MORTGAGE PROCESS

It's time! Now that you know what to expect in terms of types of financing and how to prepare for your monthly payment, you're ready to get started on your homeownership journey. 1 Application and Pre-approval

To kick off obtaining the right program for your dream home, you'll need to complete a mortgage application and have a consultation with a Penrith Mortgage Consultant. Submitting an application allows us to evaluate your income, employment status, credit and more. We're also able to provide you with a loan estimate (an estimate of fees associated with the processing and closing of your loan), and a pre-approval letter stating our commitment to lending. This letter is a must-have when shopping for a home to show sellers how serious you are when putting in an offer, and that you have the ability to close the transaction.

2 Shopping for a Home

Once you've been pre-approved, it's time to begin shopping for a home! Work with your local real estate agent to find the ideal home for you and your family's needs. From condos to townhomes to single-family homes, your agent will work with you in finding a home to call yours. As you put in offers, your agent will include your pre-approval letter from Penrith, showing sellers how prepared you are to buy, and giving them confidence on a successful transaction.

3 Title and Appraisal

Your title company will perform a title search on your behalf after your offer is accepted, essentially ensuring that your chosen property does not legally belong to anyone aside from the seller. As long as the title is clear and there are no liens on the property, the transaction will move forward. At the same time, we'll send an appraiser to the property you've chosen to ensure it is worth the amount you've offered. If the appraised value is less than your offer, you will be required to make up the price difference, or negotiate a lower selling price with the current owners.

4 Final Underwriting

Once the title and appraisal are in, your loan application gets sent to underwriting. All provided documents (your application, appraisal, credit, etc.) are evaluated by a professional underwriter to ensure they meet your loan program's requirements and guidelines. A loan approval will be issued for files that do not need further clarification; however, in some cases, an underwriter may request more documents or issue a "Conditional Approval," with a few more steps required.

5 Closing

We're in the home stretch! After all conditions on your loan have been cleared, you're off to closing. This is where you sign all of your loan documents, pay your down payment and closing costs, and receive the keys to your new home!

6 Servicing

Now that you've finalized the financing and closed on your new home loan, it's important to know where to make your monthly mortgage payments. This is where your loan servicer comes in. Learn more about servicing at www.penrithloans.com/mortgagepayments
